Group Responsibility for Student Organizations

A student enrolling in the University assumes an obligation to conduct himself in a manner compatible with the University's function as an educational institution. Misconduct for which students are subject to discipline falls into the following categories:

- Dishonesty, such as cheating, plagiarism, or knowingly furnishing false information to the University.
- Forgery, alteration, or misuse of University documents, records or identification.
- Obstruction or disruption of teaching, research, administration, disciplinary procedures, or other University activities, including its public service functions, or of other authorized activities on University premises.
- Hazing, such as any activity which recklessly endangers the physical health or safety of the student or prospective member.
- Theft of or damage to property of the University or a member of the University community or campus visitor.
- Discrimination on the basis of color, race, gender, ethnic background, age, handicaps or disability, marital or veteran status in any of its policies, procedures, or practices.
- Violation of University policies or of campus regulations, including campus regulations concerning the registration of student organizations, unauthorized entry, the use of University facilities, or the time, place and manner of public expression.
- Use, possession or distribution of narcotic or dangerous drugs, except as expressly permitted by law.
- Violation of rules governing residence in University-owned or controlled property.
- Misappropriation of organization or university funds
- Failure to comply with directions of University officials acting in the performance of their duties.
Conduct which adversely affects the student's suitability as a member of the academic community.

I assume responsibility for and attest to my organization's compliance with this policy.
